Biographical Note:

Jules Frédéric Bouchet (1799-1860) was an architect, designer, and engraver. Aided by the architect Visconti, he was appointed inspector of the reconstruction of France's Royal Library (1829) and the Court of Cassation (1834). He was then chief inspector of the Tomb of Napoleon (1842-1853) and succeeded Visconti as chief architect of the monument. He also taught at the Ecole Centrale des Arts et Manufactures, as head of graphics work, and produced two treatises for elementary students, drawing and linear perspective.
